FAMILY PERSPECTIVE

In today's gospel, Jesus teaches us: "One's life does not consist of possessions." We spend so much time working to acquire more things that we neglect the people in our lives. What is enough? Are Jesus' words, "You fool." meant for us?

PARENTING POINTERS

Summer Sanity Tip: Even if you have the benefit of being home with your child on summer days, sometimes constant togetherness can take a toll. Try a quiet hour after lunch. They can read, play quietly in their room, listen to cicadas, or just daydream. They might not call it prayer, but learning to have quiet reflective time is an ingredient of prayer.

MARRIAGE MOMENT

All married couples disagree at one time or another. Remember this rule for 'fighting fair': Feelings are neither right nor wrong, they merely are. (Marriage Encounter) Accept your spouse's feelings even if you don't share them. Share your own feelings without anger.

FROM THE PASTORS DESK

"So it is with those who store up treasures for themselves..."

Watched an episode of a series I hadn't seen before with a startling beginning. A six-year-old found a gun under his mother's bed and accidentally shot himself.

The boy's father, who hadn't been on the scene for two years, goes after his oldest son when they're in the funeral home meeting with the director, blaming the boy for not watching his brother.

The father is grabbed by the funeral director who takes him into the office in order to let him vent and calm down. After letting the father voice his grief, rage and helplessness, he says to him: "Some of us live to be a hundred; some never make it through the first day; but everybody dies – that is a fact of life. Your boy is dead and your chance to be a part of his life is over. Did you use that time well or did you just throw it away? Your life is a ticking clock – everyone's is."

Scripture today reminds us of that fact of life. The oldest meaning of the word we translate as "vanity" is linked to empty, absurd, meaningless. It's used five times in the first sentence. It's a way of reminding us that the clock is ticking. Jesus is speaking of weighty matters in today's gospel passage and he uses a parable to illustrate his teaching about a landowner whose harvest has exceeded all expectations, leaving him with a dilemma: what to do with this surplus. Did you hear him? "I" "I" "I" "I" "I" His plan is to stockpile it all – no thanks to his farmhands, his God, no invitation to his neighbors to celebrate or mention of a bonus for his workers.

Then the blazing voice of God cuts in: "You fool, tonight your life will be required of you.

Where will this stockpile go?" Jesus points out how important it is to be rich in what matters to God. That is often translated to live in God's providence; listen for the voice of God and trust in seeking his kingdom so that what you need will be given.

A priest friend in Syracuse has a framed cover of The New Yorker magazine in his office entitled "Higher Calling." It was a beach scene of four adults towering over a little child standing on the sand. All the adults have cell phones in their hands; all look intense, anxious, even angry. Three of them are in motion, pacing while the fourth is working on his laptop. The child, however, has a smile on her face – she has a conch shell to her ear, listening to the sound of the ocean. The artist is Carter Goodrich. "Higher Calling," indeed!

Don't forget to answer that call!

A Hollowed Space to Be Filled

A cup must be empty before it can be filled.

If it is already full, it can't be filled again except by emptying it out.

In order to fill anything,
there must be a hollowed-out
space.

Otherwise, it can't receive.

This is especially true of God's Word.

In order to receive it, we must be hollowed out.

We must be capable of receiving it,
emptied of the false self and
its endless demands.

When Christ came, there
was no room in the inn.

It was full. The inn is a symbol of the heart.

God's Word, Christ, can take root only in a hollow.

HISTORY OF FEAST OF THE ASSUMPTION

In the third and early fourth centuries AD, apocryphal (widely believed but not official) writings mused upon the Dormition/Assumption of Mary, none of them attaining the status of dogmatic belief. Then, in the fourth century, the bishop Epiphanius of Salamis wrote about the varying philosophies concerning the nature of the Virgin Mary's passing on, identifying three factions of belief but remaining unable to establish a broad consensus. He concluded, "No one knows her end." By the eighth century, an apocryphal text called the "Transitus Mariae" had become so generally accepted that John of Damascus was able to establish its storyline with the church as the official story from that point forward. In the West, also in the eighth century, Pope Sergius I encouraged celebrations for the Feast of the Assumption, and Pope Leo IV confirmed the Feast as official. The holiday has not only survived but also has thrived to this day, despite the church never having pointed to any concrete historical or explicit Biblical evidence (the Biblical citations being only metaphorical), nor fully admitting the story's reliance on apocrypha. Our advice? Whether you're Catholic, or from another denomination, or not religious at all, go out to the street fairs and parades. God would certainly smile upon a loving, happy gathering of friends!
